

STELLE & SEELEY

134 Wyoming Ave.

PIANOS ORGANS

We will show you what you want.

A Foe to Dyspepsia

GOOD BREAD

SNOW WHITE FLOUR

And always have Good Bread.

MANUFACTURED AND FOR SALE TO THE TRADE BY

The Weston Mill Co.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS

THE GENUINE POPULAR

Punch Cigars

HAVE THE INITIALS

G. B. & Co.

Imprinted on Each Cigar.

Garney, Brown & Co. Mfrs.

CURT HOUSE SQUARE

DR. H. B. WARE

PRACTICE LIMITED TO THE

EYE, EAR, NOSE and THROAT

406 Spruce Street.

Office Hours: 10 to 11.30

12 to 5.

To the Republican Party of Lackawanna County:

I hereby announce that I will be a candidate for the office of recorder of deeds of Lackawanna county before the next Republican convention.

H. L. HALSTEAD.

PERSONAL.

W. F. Halstead left for Binghamton on a tour of inspection yesterday.

E. G. Worden is spending a few days with his mother in Factoryville.

Mrs. Phelps, daughter of Dr. Throop, left yesterday for the Danville sanitarium.

John E. Roche, returned from Lake Winola to attend the meeting of the select council.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Nettleton, daughter Marie and son Albert, are sojourning at the Fenimore, Asbury Park.

C. M. Flarey and family, E. G. Stewart and family and B. F. Lacy and family are summering at Lake Sheridan.

John A. Boland, teacher in the institute in Ronay, West Wheeling, Virginia, is visiting his sister and aunt in Dunmore.

Mrs. J. H. Holt and children, of Madison avenue, Green Ridge, are visiting in Connecticut, where they will remain the balance of the summer.

The farewell concert given by Professors Hayden Evans and Singers, will be held on Monday evening, Aug. 20, at the Jackson street Baptist church.

The ladies of the Green Ridge Baptist church, will hold an ice cream social on the church lawn this evening, postponed from last evening on account of rain.

Captain B. J. Cromwell, of the United States navy; Mrs. Cromwell and the Misses Cromwell passed through the city yesterday en route for Housatonic, where they will visit friends.

Mrs. John Harris, of West Pittston; Mrs. John W. Evans and Mrs. Keese W. Lloyd, of Scranton, are going to Wales next week to see about an estate of half a million in which they have interest.

Scranton's Business Interests.

THE TRIBUNE will soon publish a carefully compiled and classified list of the leading wholesale, banking, manufacturing and professional interests of Scranton and vicinity. The edition will be bound in book form, beautifully illustrated with photographic views of our public buildings, business blocks, streets, etc., together with portraits of leading citizens. No similar work has ever given an equal representation of Scranton's many industries. It will be an invaluable exposition of our business resources. Sent to persons outside the city, copies of this handsome work will attract new comers and be an unequalled advertisement of the city. The circulation is on a plan that cannot fail of good results to those concerned as well as the city at large. Representatives of THE TRIBUNE will call upon those whose names are desired in this edition and explain its nature more fully.

Those desiring views of their residences in this edition will please have notice at the office.

STATED BY H. B. Cochran, druggist, Lancaster, Pa.: Have guaranteed over 300 bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters for dyspepsia, sour stomach, bilious attacks, liver and kidney troubles.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sore Throat, Salt Rheum, Fever Sore, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Matthews Bros.

$40,000 School House No. 27.

E. L. Water, architect, bids to be opened this month to be built on Columbia avenue. Lots for sale on this avenue at low prices for brief notice.

ARTHUR PROTHINGHAM.

NEWS OF WEST SIDE

Plans Are Being Prepared by City Engineer Phillips for Tripp's Wood.

SPENT THE DAY AT LAUREL HILL

A Number of Well Known West Side Ladies and Their Families Enjoy a Pleasant Outing—Death of Mrs. Catherine Williams, a Former Resident of Scranton—Personal Mention and Many Brief News Notes.

Plans are now being made by City Engineer Phillips, of the tract of land to be secured for Tripp's Park. It gives measurements of the driveway, walks, lake, base ball diamond and other features. This plot of ground possesses all the proper facilities for a park.

It is situated in a place where the Providence people can reap some of the enjoyment, and with the cars running to it, can be made very accessible. A driveway will be made around the entire tract. The miniature lake which will be made, will be deepened by banking it around with dirt. It is now believed that the Round Woods can also be secured.

Action should be taken in the latter project before land speculators seize the ground.

A DAY AT LAUREL HILL

West Side Ladies Seek Enjoyment Under Its Spreading Trees.

A number of prominent West Side ladies repaired to Laurel Hill park yesterday morning where a day of enjoyment was spent. They started about 9 o'clock, returning about 6 o'clock.

Those who comprised the party were Mesdames Alton, Thomas, Path, Munson, W. Griffiths, H. Fellows, Houser, of Taylor, Stephens, Mohr, Staples, Lansing, Crummons, Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Yule, Stella Yule, Jennie and Lena Staples, Mrs. Ace, Mrs. Ace and Edsel Rinker.

Most of the ladies had their families. The day was made pleasing to both young and old.

LITTLE WEST SIDE NEWS NOTES.

Lou Jones, of North Hyde Park avenue, is in Carbondale.

Shoe repairing promptly attended to at the Globe Shoe store.

Benjamin Stephens, of New York, is the guest of W. H. Roe, of Price street.

The excursion of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church will leave this morning.

Miss Jennie Johnson, of Moscow, is visiting Miss Eira Mayis, of North Hyde Park avenue.

Mrs. Richard Hicks, of Easton, has returned home from a visit with friends on this side.

Misses Jennie and Lavinia Edwards, of Pittston, were among friends on this side yesterday.

Lulu James and Nettie Elias, both of South Lincoln avenue, have returned from Catsaquia.

Elias Jones, of Bellevue street, is suffering from a broken arm caused by falling from a wagon.

We are clearing out the whole of our stock of fine etchings. Chicago Art Co., 137 Penn avenue.

The street and bridges committee will meet soon in the West Side bank rooms to arrange future work.

Misses Nellie Williams, of Hampton street, and Laura Green, of Bellevue, are visiting friends in Hawley.

Miss Leah L. Stone, of Jackson street, returned home from a two weeks' stay with friends in Wilkes-Barre.

The following officers are assigned to this precinct for September: Jowler, Gurrell, Geschiede, Goeritz, Hetschroth and Hang.

The Mendelssohn Choral society will meet on Sunday evening in the First Welsh Baptist church. All members are urgently requested to be present.

The funeral of George, the young child of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Webber, of North Lincoln avenue, occurred yesterday morning. The remains were conveyed on the 9.55 Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train to Paradise, where interment was made.

The Druid Glee society met last evening in Dougherty's hall for rehearsal. The society is practicing for the September contest of the competitive piece, "The Martyrs of the Cross." They are progressing rapidly under the instruction of Lewis Watey.

The death of Mrs. Catherine Williams, who for many years had been a resident of this vicinity, is a sad blow to her many friends here. Mrs. Williams was 82 years of age, and was a sister of the late D. D. Evans of this side. She was a woman of firm Christian principles, and was connected with the Welsh church of Wilkes-Barre.

LOST HER BEARINGS.

Lady from Bradford County Forgot Where She Wanted to Be at.

Detective Reynolds was yesterday called into consultation in a rather peculiar case. A very intelligent and respectable appearing lady, whose home is in Sayre, Bradford county, started out yesterday to visit friends, but after reaching this city she could not remember the name of the town she intended to visit, although she was aware that it was in this region some where.

Mr. Reynolds questioned her closely, but from what she knew of the place, nothing definite of its whereabouts could be gleaned. All the towns for miles around were suggested to her, but none of them sounded familiar. The lady mentioned that at one time a Baptist minister in this town had suddenly fallen ill on the street and had been carried to her husband's house, where he died. Mr. Reynolds remembered that just such an incident had taken place in Clifford, Susquehanna county, and he suggested Clifford to the lady.

"That's it, Oh how silly of me to forget it!" she broke out with a laugh.

The absent minded lady trying to remember the place of her destination and further than an extra day's board bill and considerable embarrassment she was making the worse off for her peculiar experience.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

It Was Held Yesterday by the Scranton Steel Company.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Scranton Steel company held yesterday afternoon at the company's office on Wyoming ave, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. W. Scranton, president; directors, W. W. Scranton, Walter Scranton, James E. Langdon, William Connell, Henry Bell, Jr., E. B. Sturges, E. P. Kingsbury.

STABLE BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE.

It Was the Property of I. F. Megargel, of Olive Street.

The barn on Hitchcock court belonging to I. F. Megargel and in the rear of his residence at 918 Olive street, was nearly consumed by fire last night.

NEWS OF NORTH END

July Was a Busy Month in Providence Police Circles.

PREVIOUS RECORDS BROKEN

Increased Number of Arrests is Attributed to Unlicensed Drinking Places—Opinions of Providence Preachers of the Gospel—Death of Mrs. Mary Stankevitch Under Sad Circumstances—Condition of William J. Thomas—Other Notes.

CAUGHT on the Fly.

"I shall never forget the fearful and heart rending cry of Mrs. Lincoln on that awful night in Ford's theater, Washington, when she was brutally and assassinated by John Wilkes Booth," said Thomas Fair, of New York, who is now in this city in the interest of a metropolitan drug firm, as he began a graphic story of the foul murder which deprived the nation of one of its noblest heroes.

It was then a young man and an intimate friend of Charles Brush at that time chief steward of the Lincoln United States general hospital. On Good Friday evening, April 14, 1865, at the invitation of Mr. Brush he attended the opera. Laura Keane was playing "Our American Cousin." They had seats in the orchestra circle in the third row not more than twenty feet from the box occupied by President Lincoln and Major Rathbourn.

The first act of the drama was being played and Mr. Fair said he noticed that Laura Keane was by the rapid footsteps of a man walking toward it. He saw Booth, whom he knew, enter the box and immediately there was a report of a revolver.

With desperate agility Booth was seen to leap over the front rail of the box to the stage, a distance of ten feet. The box was fastened with buttons and flags, and a spur of the assassin's boots caught in the decoration and he stumbled, but landed squarely on his feet on the stage.

He drew a dagger from his overcoat pocket and with a maniac shriek turned, "See Sinner Thy name is Abraham," then stepped to the side of the stage and disappeared in the wings.

Mr. Fair says he leaped from his seat and climbed to the box where the murdered president lay writhing in the agony of death, caught the dying Lincoln in his arms and carried him to the foyer. Mrs. Lincoln and Major Rathbourn were too much affected to block the entrance of Booth or of any assistance to President Lincoln, although Major Rathbourn grappled with Booth and was shaken off like a brawny man would free himself from the grasp of a child.

While the general impression prevails that Medala, the Old Forge murderer, is in a foreign land, it is possible that he is still secreted in the mountains. About a week ago Thomas Grimes, of Oak Hill, a small hamlet below Greenwood, heard that a suspicious looking character was prowling in the neighborhood. He followed the fellow's tracks and came up to him at the door of a farm house in the vicinity.

The fellow was begging for provender, and asked for something light, saying that his stomach was in a tumble-down condition from lack of nourishment, as he has been forced to ally the pangs of hunger for over a week with berries and green leaves, in the absence of anything of a more substantial quality. While he was waiting to be served with supper, which the farmer's wife was preparing for him, a violent attack of cramps overcame him, and the only remedy at hand, a small dose of laudanum was administered. This relaxed his stomach and caused him to vomit the contents, which proved to corroborate his statement that he had eaten nothing but berries and leaves. He recovered and attacked the luncheon on the farmer's table with alacrity, after which he thanked them and prepared to depart.

But the folks observed that he bore a close resemblance to the fugitive Medala from the description given, and the transitory lodger was detained until a man named Murphy from Old Forge was sent for to identify the man if he were the bloodthirsty Italian. The man had the particular scar which Medala is said to bear and in age and build corresponded to the description. He had the Italian accent, although he denied being of that nationality. When Murphy arrived he said that the man was not all enough to be Medala and on this explanation the man was allowed to make himself wherever his fancy directed.

LIQUOR'S EFFECT ON CRIME.

Henry Charles Lee, in August Forum.

Toistol may perhaps exaggerate when he asserts that alcohol is accountable for 99 per cent of crime, and that of women who stray one-half yield to temptation when under its influence; but the best informed criminologists ascribe to it a large share not only in stimulating to crime and in blunting the moral perceptions, but also in producing the peculiarly dangerous class of born criminals, who are hopelessly incorrigible. Many of the most notorious and convicted criminals 11 per cent of them were children of drunken parents.

IS A PUBLIC ENEMY.

The Onlooker.

The man who, consciously or unconsciously, helps to support and encourage a player against another is an enemy to the public only less dangerous than he who sets Roman Catholic and Protestant against each other. The recent convulsions of this city, which were religious in nature, was a war of religious factions, next to that is a war of industrial factions.

SOUTH SIDE.

A Washington Avenue Merchant Givas a Reverend Gentleman Trouble.

Rev. Samuel Kleinfeld, rabbi of the Polish-Jew synagogue on Washington avenue East, was detained yesterday as he was boarding a Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train for New York with his newly wed wife, by an execution attaching his goods, issued at the instance of Max Judkovic, who keeps a general store on the East.

It appears that when Mr. Kleinfeld was getting married he bought a suit of clothes from Judkovic, giving him a judgment note for $30 in payment. He neglected to settle the note before starting for New York, where he intends to reside, and fearing that the note would not be paid Judkovic had an execution issued.

The writ was served just as the clergyman was about to get on the train. He was anything but pleased at the interruption, but after a talk with the storekeeper an amicable adjustment was arrived at. Judkovic himself satisfied the writ and paid the costs, and the rabbi went on to New York.

BULL JUMPED THE FENCE.

A Law Suit the Result of Taurus' Activity.

Max Phillips sent Ferdinand Schroeder up to Roaring Brook to take charge of his farm, in April last. On that farm was a bull, a ferocious bull, so Schroeder says. When Phillips went up to review the work of his steward he found his bull had jumped the fence and was roaming around the

NEWS OF NORTH END

July Was a Busy Month in Providence Police Circles.

PREVIOUS RECORDS BROKEN

Increased Number of Arrests is Attributed to Unlicensed Drinking Places—Opinions of Providence Preachers of the Gospel—Death of Mrs. Mary Stankevitch Under Sad Circumstances—Condition of William J. Thomas—Other Notes.

CAUGHT on the Fly.

"I shall never forget the fearful and heart rending cry of Mrs. Lincoln on that awful night in Ford's theater, Washington, when she was brutally and assassinated by John Wilkes Booth," said Thomas Fair, of New York, who is now in this city in the interest of a metropolitan drug firm, as he began a graphic story of the foul murder which deprived the nation of one of its noblest heroes.

It was then a young man and an intimate friend of Charles Brush at that time chief steward of the Lincoln United States general hospital. On Good Friday evening, April 14, 1865, at the invitation of Mr. Brush he attended the opera. Laura Keane was playing "Our American Cousin." They had seats in the orchestra circle in the third row not more than twenty feet from the box occupied by President Lincoln and Major Rathbourn.

The first act of the drama was being played and Mr. Fair said he noticed that Laura Keane was by the rapid footsteps of a man walking toward it. He saw Booth, whom he knew, enter the box and immediately there was a report of a revolver.

With desperate agility Booth was seen to leap over the front rail of the box to the stage, a distance of ten feet. The box was fastened with buttons and flags, and a spur of the assassin's boots caught in the decoration and he stumbled, but landed squarely on his feet on the stage.

He drew a dagger from his overcoat pocket and with a maniac shriek turned, "See Sinner Thy name is Abraham," then stepped to the side of the stage and disappeared in the wings.

Mr. Fair says he leaped from his seat and climbed to the box where the murdered president lay writhing in the agony of death, caught the dying Lincoln in his arms and carried him to the foyer. Mrs. Lincoln and Major Rathbourn were too much affected to block the entrance of Booth or of any assistance to President Lincoln, although Major Rathbourn grappled with Booth and was shaken off like a brawny man would free himself from the grasp of a child.

While the general impression prevails that Medala, the Old Forge murderer, is in a foreign land, it is possible that he is still secreted in the mountains. About a week ago Thomas Grimes, of Oak Hill, a small hamlet below Greenwood, heard that a suspicious looking character was prowling in the neighborhood. He followed the fellow's tracks and came up to him at the door of a farm house in the vicinity.

The fellow was begging for provender, and asked for something light, saying that his stomach was in a tumble-down condition from lack of nourishment, as he has been forced to ally the pangs of hunger for over a week with berries and green leaves, in the absence of anything of a more substantial quality. While he was waiting to be served with supper, which the farmer's wife was preparing for him, a violent attack of cramps overcame him, and the only remedy at hand, a small dose of laudanum was administered. This relaxed his stomach and caused him to vomit the contents, which proved to corroborate his statement that he had eaten nothing but berries and leaves. He recovered and attacked the luncheon on the farmer's table with alacrity, after which he thanked them and prepared to depart.

But the folks observed that he bore a close resemblance to the fugitive Medala from the description given, and the transitory lodger was detained until a man named Murphy from Old Forge was sent for to identify the man if he were the bloodthirsty Italian. The man had the particular scar which Medala is said to bear and in age and build corresponded to the description. He had the Italian accent, although he denied being of that nationality. When Murphy arrived he said that the man was not all enough to be Medala and on this explanation the man was allowed to make himself wherever his fancy directed.

LIQUOR'S EFFECT ON CRIME.

Henry Charles Lee, in August Forum.

Toistol may perhaps exaggerate when he asserts that alcohol is accountable for 99 per cent of crime, and that of women who stray one-half yield to temptation when under its influence; but the best informed criminologists ascribe to it a large share not only in stimulating to crime and in blunting the moral perceptions, but also in producing the peculiarly dangerous class of born criminals, who are hopelessly incorrigible. Many of the most notorious and convicted criminals 11 per cent of them were children of drunken parents.

IS A PUBLIC ENEMY.

The Onlooker.

The man who, consciously or unconsciously, helps to support and encourage a player against another is an enemy to the public only less dangerous than he who sets Roman Catholic and Protestant against each other. The recent convulsions of this city, which were religious in nature, was a war of religious factions, next to that is a war of industrial factions.

SOUTH SIDE.

A Washington Avenue Merchant Givas a Reverend Gentleman Trouble.

Rev. Samuel Kleinfeld, rabbi of the Polish-Jew synagogue on Washington avenue East, was detained yesterday as he was boarding a Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train for New York with his newly wed wife, by an execution attaching his goods, issued at the instance of Max Judkovic, who keeps a general store on the East.

It appears that when Mr. Kleinfeld was getting married he bought a suit of clothes from Judkovic, giving him a judgment note for $30 in payment. He neglected to settle the note before starting for New York, where he intends to reside, and fearing that the note would not be paid Judkovic had an execution issued.

The writ was served just as the clergyman was about to get on the train. He was anything but pleased at the interruption, but after a talk with the storekeeper an amicable adjustment was arrived at. Judkovic himself satisfied the writ and paid the costs, and the rabbi went on to New York.

BULL JUMPED THE FENCE.

A Law Suit the Result of Taurus' Activity.

Max Phillips sent Ferdinand Schroeder up to Roaring Brook to take charge of his farm, in April last. On that farm was a bull, a ferocious bull, so Schroeder says. When Phillips went up to review the work of his steward he found his bull had jumped the fence and was roaming around the

NEWS OF NORTH END

July Was a Busy Month in Providence Police Circles.

PREVIOUS RECORDS BROKEN

Increased Number of Arrests is Attributed to Unlicensed Drinking Places—Opinions of Providence Preachers of the Gospel—Death of Mrs. Mary Stankevitch Under Sad Circumstances—Condition of William J. Thomas—Other Notes.

CAUGHT on the Fly.

"I shall never forget the fearful and heart rending cry of Mrs. Lincoln on that awful night in Ford's theater, Washington, when she was brutally and assassinated by John Wilkes Booth," said Thomas Fair, of New York, who is now in this city in the interest of a metropolitan drug firm, as he began a graphic story of the foul murder which deprived the nation of one of its noblest heroes.

It was then a young man and an intimate friend of Charles Brush at that time chief steward of the Lincoln United States general hospital. On Good Friday evening, April 14, 1865, at the invitation of Mr. Brush he attended the opera. Laura Keane was playing "Our American Cousin." They had seats in the orchestra circle in the third row not more than twenty feet from the box occupied by President Lincoln and Major Rathbourn.

The first act of the drama was being played and Mr. Fair said he noticed that Laura Keane was by the rapid footsteps of a man walking toward it. He saw Booth, whom he knew, enter the box and immediately there was a report of a revolver.

With desperate agility Booth was seen to leap over the front rail of the box to the stage, a distance of ten feet. The box was fastened with buttons and flags, and a spur of the assassin's boots caught in the decoration and he stumbled, but landed squarely on his feet on the stage.

He drew a dagger from his overcoat pocket and with a maniac shriek turned, "See Sinner Thy name is Abraham," then stepped to the side of the stage and disappeared in the wings.

Mr. Fair says he leaped from his seat and climbed to the box where the murdered president lay writhing in the agony of death, caught the dying Lincoln in his arms and carried him to the foyer. Mrs. Lincoln and Major Rathbourn were too much affected to block the entrance of Booth or of any assistance to President Lincoln, although Major Rathbourn grappled with Booth and was shaken off like a brawny man would free himself from the grasp of a child.

While the general impression prevails that Medala, the Old Forge murderer, is in a foreign land, it is possible that he is still secreted in the mountains. About a week ago Thomas Grimes, of Oak Hill, a small hamlet below Greenwood, heard that a suspicious looking character was prowling in the neighborhood. He followed the fellow's tracks and came up to him at the door of a farm house in the vicinity.

The fellow was begging for provender, and asked for something light, saying that his stomach was in a tumble-down condition from lack of nourishment, as he has been forced to ally the pangs of hunger for over a week with berries and green leaves, in the absence of anything of a more substantial quality. While he was waiting to be served with supper, which the farmer's wife was preparing for him, a violent attack of cramps overcame him, and the only remedy at hand, a small dose of laudanum was administered. This relaxed his stomach and caused him to vomit the contents, which proved to corroborate his statement that he had eaten nothing but berries and leaves. He recovered and attacked the luncheon on the farmer's table with alacrity, after which he thanked them and prepared to depart.

But the folks observed that he bore a close resemblance to the fugitive Medala from the description given, and the transitory lodger was detained until a man named Murphy from Old Forge was sent for to identify the man if he were the bloodthirsty Italian. The man had the particular scar which Medala is said to bear and in age and build corresponded to the description. He had the Italian accent, although he denied being of that nationality. When Murphy arrived he said that the man was not all enough to be Medala and on this explanation the man was allowed to make himself wherever his fancy directed.

LIQUOR'S EFFECT ON CRIME.

Henry Charles Lee, in August Forum.

Toistol may perhaps exaggerate when he asserts that alcohol is accountable for 99 per cent of crime, and that of women who stray one-half yield to temptation when under its influence; but the best informed criminologists ascribe to it a large share not only in stimulating to crime and in blunting the moral perceptions, but also in producing the peculiarly dangerous class of born criminals, who are hopelessly incorrigible. Many of the most notorious and convicted criminals 11 per cent of them were children of drunken parents.

IS A PUBLIC ENEMY.

The Onlooker.

The man who, consciously or unconsciously, helps to support and encourage a player against another is an enemy to the public only less dangerous than he who sets Roman Catholic and Protestant against each other. The recent convulsions of this city, which were religious in nature, was a war of religious factions, next to that is a war of industrial factions.

SOUTH SIDE.

A Washington Avenue Merchant Givas a Reverend Gentleman Trouble.

Rev. Samuel Kleinfeld, rabbi of the Polish-Jew synagogue on Washington avenue East, was detained yesterday as he was boarding a Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train for New York with his newly wed wife, by an execution attaching his goods, issued at the instance of Max Judkovic, who keeps a general store on the East.

It appears that when Mr. Kleinfeld was getting married he bought a suit of clothes from Judkovic, giving him a judgment note for $30 in payment. He neglected to settle the note before starting for New York, where he intends to reside, and fearing that the note would not be paid Judkovic had an execution issued.

The writ was served just as the clergyman was about to get on the train. He was anything but pleased at the interruption, but after a talk with the storekeeper an amicable adjustment was arrived at. Judkovic himself satisfied the writ and paid the costs, and the rabbi went on to New York.

BULL JUMPED THE FENCE.

A Law Suit the Result of Taurus' Activity.

Max Phillips sent Ferdinand Schroeder up to Roaring Brook to take charge of his farm, in April last. On that farm was a bull, a ferocious bull, so Schroeder says. When Phillips went up to review the work of his steward he found his bull had jumped the fence and was roaming around the